Brief description

Palmitoyl dipeptide-18 inhibits the production of excess interleukins and therefore suppresses unwanted inappropriate inflammatory responses and glycation damage.

Palmitoyl dipeptide-18 has been used in beauty products and cosmetics to reduce the cumulative damage that occurs after exposure to UV light, pollution, internal stress and other pro-inflammatory factors. It has been used to combat skin laxity and to enliven and firm the delicate skin area around the eyes.

Application and function

This peptide sequence is found in proteins of the extracellular matrix, such as the alpha chain of collagen, and it is thought to be released during wounds and inflammation. Feedback stimulation of collagen repair by this peptide has also been suggested, but the main benefit to photoaged skin is thought to be enhanced copper delivery. It has been found to have a beneficial effect on collagen stimulation.
